

Angry WOMEN

Pay a Terrible PRICE:

Discover the True Costs & What to Do

Angry women and men deal with anger differently and thus require unique approaches to managing their anger. Women, for example, let anger hurt their self-image, narrow their choices, limit their careers, and destroy their families. Their anger often leads to depression, eating disorders, and destructive relationships. As victims of domestic violence, women often suffer in silence.

Impact's extensive collection of resources (books, DVDs, kits, games) address these and many other anger management issues for both women and men:
