Educational Games

The Ultimate High School/Adult Educational Game Kit

Games and simulations have significant advantages over other instructional methods. They are particularly useful for teaching many subject areas that are very difficult to convey using other teaching techniques. These Monopoly-style games are very effective in getting and holding the player's attention, teaching empathy, and building social skills, as they can be played by multiple groups at a time (ideal for up to four teams with two players each). They are also especially helpful for people with special needs. Each game includes a teacher's booklet for post-game discussion, and separate rules for different grade levels. Spinners available for $3.00 each. Can purchase most for $49.95 each, unless specified otherwise. SPECIAL: $999.95 for the entire set of 21 games.

Separate Board Games

Career Odyssey

Career Odyssey® helps students explore careers that may be good matches for their talents and interests. Students develop insight into their own talents and interests and then try to match them to careers. Players fill out a brief "Talents and Interests" card that asks them to select two talents out of six that are most descriptive of themselves. The talents are based on Howard Gardner's theory of multiple intelligences, but the names are simplified. Players also specify work preferences, such as working alone or with others. $54.95

Overcoming Employment Barriers

Overcoming Employment Barriers™ gives job seekers the skills they need to overcome barriers to getting a good job. A wide range of barriers are covered in the game, including prison record, lack of skills, English language fluency, homelessness, addiction, former addiction, physical disability, inappropriate appearance, bad references, and others. $49.95

From Rage to Reason

Teaches important concepts and practical skills for controlling anger and avoiding violence. Players earn play money by giving Randy good advice on how to deal with frustrating and anger-provoking situations throughout his day, both on the job and in his personal life. Randy is rejected by a friend, taken advantage of by a co-worker, and suffers through other anger-provoking situations typical of teenagers and young adults. $49.95

Interview Challenge

Interview Challenge® teaches important job interviewing skills. In the game, players compete to give Paula, a job applicant, advice on how to succeed in her interview. While playing, players learn eight vital skills for successful interviewing, as well as seven major types of questions and how to answer them. The game contains many excellent answers to typical interview questions that students can use as models for their own answers. $49.95

Equipped for Life

New!

This game gives youth important decision-making skills to help them think and act responsibly. Includes over 100 situation cards for each of two levels, grades 5-8 and grades 9-young adult. Covers daily living, education, relationships, school, community, substance abuse, employment, and after school activities. Users identify thinking errors. $54.95

The Networking Game

This game teaches lifelong networking skills for finding jobs and advancing careers. Players learn to get organized, clarify who they are, make better use of social networks, build relationships, believe in themselves, and more. $49.95

New!

You Can't Fire the Customer

Customer service has become a major element in the strategic plans of all successful companies today. Companies expect employees to give excellent service to all customers, as well as successfully handle difficult customers who can be hard to please, uncertain, angry, insulting, or even threatening. It is often the failure to deal successfully with these difficult customers that leads to reprimands and termination for employees. Grades 8-12. $49.95

You're Hired!

You're Hired!® helps students learn important skills in the job search process, especially filling out applications and interviewing. Players play the role of the employer. They evaluate job applications and interview candidates. To win the game, players have to think critically and evaluate each candidate's strengths and limitations. Grades 9-adult. $49.95

You're the Boss

This game is designed to teach the importance of responsibility, reliability, integrity, and incorporating a strong work ethic. In order to win the game, players need reliable and responsible employees. Unreliable, dishonest, and irresponsible employees prevent the player from winning the game. Suitable for grades 5-adult. $49.95
